The Grant McMillan Trophy

Grant McMillan is a doctor who specialises in health and safety. He spent over thirty years in uniform in the Royal Navy, including time in training establishments and in search and rescue helicopters. This taught him that, while life should not be spent in the safety of a “bubble wrap” cocoon, we should always be on the lookout for danger so that we can avoid taking needless risks for our own health and safety and that of others. He believes that this should not be seen as an optional extra or a needless burden and that it is never too early in life to make this attention to health and safety an automatic part of our work and play — starting at home and in schools and colleges.

This trophy is dedicated in recognition of Grant's contribution in the field of occupational health and safety, and his commitment to the Hampshire Health Safety and Environmental Group.

The Grant McMillan Trophy is to be awarded to entries from Infant, Junior, and Primary Schools and Youth Organisations with members in the 7 to 11 year age group. The trophy will be awarded on merit to the entry which best demonstrates promotion and commitments to safety, health, and/or environmental protection through their schoolwork, hobbies, or youth group activities.
